Harry Hayward Bordering on the Verge of Insanity.

Sleeping or Waking He Sees Before Him the Phantom Faces

Of Those Closely Connected With His Trial
--He Claims That the Devil Stood at the Foot of His Bed and Conversed With Him.

MINNEAPOLIS. Dec. 10.—Harry T. Hayward, the condemned murderer of Katherine Ginge, is bordering on the verge of insanity.

Sleeping or waking he sees before him the phantom faces of those closely connected with the trial, wherein he found his doom. Muttering in the dead of night, waving his hands before his face in the day time, he seems always to see something of which the physician who stood by knew nothing, said nothing.

"What is it, Harry," has often been asked, and his only reply was:

"Don't you see them? They are here and there," pointing in the dark corners of his cell and crouching back as if it had his name on it.

"This is all that he would say to County Physician Burton, who attended him throughout the long watches of the night and administered opiate to quiet the famous prisoner, whose fitful starts and lunges gave him torment.

To the reporter, however, he explained:

"Say, do you know, last night I saw the devil. He stood at the foot of my bed and spoke to me. Another stood at the corner, and also saw two others. One was dressed with a coat and threw them out, but it did no good. I told them that I was not afraid, and the guard will tell you the same. Then I saw the face of Kitte Ging. She spoke to me, but I did not answer. Didn't you ever see a ghost? I want to give him, but I could not. Oh, if my brother Adry had only come, I would have strangled him and been contented to hang," with a laugh that sounded harsh in the echoing cell.

A deputy went to his cell and he relived his terrors.

"Good," he said, "I've won a thousand. Let him go. Deuce, then ace, ha! ha! I win again!" Then an oath fell from his lips and his talk became rambling and unintelligent."

A lucid moment dawned, and he was asking how he felt.

"Great," he exclaimed; "I never spent a happier day in my life," and the laugh, too horrible to respond from his hearers rang out.

The old life was lived over again in silent hours with the stars Harry wore emblem bands of tobacco as if engaged once more in a fight.

If Harry has not a hope for commutation of sentence through the play of insanity, he has lost his reason indeed.

Although an iron door divided him from the outside world, Harry heard the sounds of the hammer as they nailed together the parts of the scaffold that was to relieve him.

"They're off," he exclaimed, with horrid laugh, "go it, you fellows. Make it strong, for I don't want any slip."

The drop and they cut me down, if I get up and walk, do you suppose that they will let me go?" The guard assured the prisoner that he was a free man should he perform this feat.

BUT FOUNDERS.

The First S. Campbell, With Her Crew of Seven, Lost.

DULUTH. Minn., Dec. 10.—News received here Monday morning of the finding of the tug No. 3, Sam Clegg, of the Inman Line of the Isle of Hump Island, about 40 miles from L'Anse, Mich., on Saturday morning. The lost are: Capt. W. T. McGilvray, Jno Lloyd, first mate; Geo. McCort, chief engineer; Fred England, second engineer; one name unknown; two firemen, names unknown.

The tug had been working on the schooners Kent and Moonlight, attempting to release them and good progress was being made, when heavy weather caused them to cease operations. The crew were safe, with the exception of McCort, who was buried in the sea.

McCort was being held in custody at Sheboygan, Mich., All were single.

"They're off," he exclaimed, with horrid laugh, "go it, you fellows. Make it strong, for I don't want any slip."

The drop and they cut me down, if I get up and walk, do you suppose that they will let me go?" The guard assured the prisoner that he was a free man should he perform this feat.

CAPT. HUGHES,

Charged With Violating the Neutrality Law.

CHARLESTON. (S. C.) Dec. 10.—Judge Browley, of the United States district court, handed down Monday his decision in the case against Capt. Samuel Hughes, the master of the steamship Elwood, who violated the law relating to the neutrality laws of the United States. Judge Browley holds that while there is no proof of an expedition begun within the territory of the United States, there is sufficient proof of an offense committed on the high seas to justify further investigation. He nevertheless issued an order holding Capt. Hughes under bond for trial at the approaching January term of court for the eastern division of South Carolina.

Shoemakers Come to Grief.

FAIRBORN, Ohio, Dec. 10.—Three Shoemakers, the sons of Joe Hood, between here and Middletown, died Saturday night, Sunday the goods were found caught on the dam below, and Monday two dead bodies and an upturned skiff and many goods were found. The three were undoubtedly shot, as wet goods were found on the bank. They had probably overloaded the skiff with goods, sinking it.

CINCINNATI FAILURE.

A Recession Approaches for the A. E. Co. and Standard Oil Co. Here.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 10.—Attorney Louis Kramer has been appointed receiver of the A. E. Burkhardt Co., Assets, $380,000; liabilities, $350,000. The cause of the failure is given as overtrading and losses amounting to $10,000, the greater portion of which were held by Cincinnati banks, were due. What banks they are the receivers refused to state.

There were five or six overdue accounts of New York people and they threatened to sue.

The Burkhardt Co. is one of the largest for houses in the country.

Its main establishment is at 255 and 258 Race street. Its branches are a retail store on Fourth street, near Vine.

The company was incorporated in 1892 with a capital stock of $500,000, divided into $100,000 common and $100,000 preferred stock.

The shares were valued at $100 each.

BANK SWINDLERS.

They Work the Country Banks Throughout Kansas and Oklahoma.

WICHITA, Kan., Dec. 10.—Abner Bourne, cashier of the Citizens' state bank of Harper, reports a swindle of considerable magnitude has been worked on the country banks throughout central and western Kansas and in Oklahoma Territory. Already over a dozen victims of a mysterious swindler known by the name of George Edwards have been bilked of losses of $10,000 each through his manipulation.

The scheme is carried on by means of drafts made payable to Elwood's office. They all originate from a bank at Janesville, Ia., and are to appear as genuine but when banks send telegrams to Janesville they are tested and rejected and when a telegram of any sort, Elwood evidently has a confederate in Janesville.

Agent Indian Swindlers Arrested.

FORT GRANT, Ariz., Dec. 10.—A squad of the 7th cavalry, accompanied by the Indian police, brought in seven men and a boy of the White Mountain Apache Indians from the San Carlos reservation, who are believed to be the murderers of Merrill and his daughter, who were killed April 12, last, last week. The Apaches were all armed, carrying carbines such as those with which there is reason to believe the murder was committed. They are held for further investigation.
